

VOLUNTEER FORM

for THE Physicians-in-Training Host Program

What is the Physicians-in-Training Host Program?

The Physicians-in-Training Host Program offers a one or two-night stay in an Alliance member's home to fourth year medical students, who are on the interview trail.

What is the goal of the program?

The program was created by the AMA Alliance to help students cut down on interviewing costs and introduce them to the community, medical society and Alliance. The program is the perfect way to show your support for the family of medicine. By bringing a medical student into your home, you help the student and the Alliance to grow.

What are the responsibilities of a host?

Generally, hosts are asked to provide housing for a one or two-night stay. You may provide the medical student with meals or transportation at your discretion. The student may have common relocation questions for you, such as referrals to apartments, realtors, places to go, babysitters, etc. It is up to you to decide and communicate to the medical student the extent of your support. Ideally, a host should communicate some information about the Alliance to the guest student. The simplest of information is beneficial - many of these students are not even aware of the Alliance.

What have other hosts and students said about the program?

"Hosting my first medical student was a delightful experience! I had no obligations other than offering her a place to stay. However she felt like a member of the family from the moment I met her..."

Joan Cincotta, NY

"The Brasfields are the nicest people ever. They had plenty of information on Nashville, Vanderbilt Medical Center and living in Tennessee. What a great program."

Mark, University of Virginia

"The student I hosted was a lovely person and the experience was easy and uncomplicated for our family. This is a simple and easy way we, as Alliance members, can support the family of medicine."

Terri Ault, IA

What if I can't host a student on a requested date?

We understand that Alliance members lead busy lives, and signing up to be a host does not obligate you to a specific number of days. Please mark on the comment line if there is a date you cannot host. Also, if you know of anyone else who might be interested in becoming a P.I.T. host, please pass on this information.
